

ASIAN SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY FORUM

Session XIX, Tuesday, December 5, 2006

INNOVATIVE INDIA AND THE UNITED STATES

Developed and Executed by Computer Sciences Corporation (CSC) with the Asia Policy Point (APP).

The opinions expressed in this forum are those of the speakers and authors and may not represent those of the US Government, US Government agencies, the Department of Defense, the US Air Force, USAFOSR/IO, CSC, or APP.

Speakers

Walter Andersen is acting director of the South Asia Studies Program at the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) of Johns Hopkins University. He had previously served as a teaching adjunct at SAIS to develop a sequence of South Asia courses. Prior to joining SAIS, Dr. Anderson was with the U.S. State Department since the late 1970s as an analyst on India and Indian Ocean affairs. From 1988-91, he was assigned to the U.S. Embassy New Delhi and was special assistant to the Ambassador, writing analyses of policy options. On his return to the U.S., Andersen headed the State Department's South Asia Division in the Office of Analysis for the Near East and South Asia. Before joining the State Department, Dr. Anderson worked as a special assistant on technology policy for a member of Congress. Andersen had been a teaching fellow at the University of Chicago, followed by an appointment in the Political Science Department of the College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Science degree from Concordia College, and did his graduate work at the University of Chicago, where he received a Ph.D. in Political Science. Dr. Anderson is writing a book on Hindu nationalism.

Email: wandersen@jhu.edu

Carl J. Dahlman is the Luce Professor of International Relations and Information Technology at the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He joined Georgetown in January 2005 after more than 25 years at the World Bank. At Georgetown, Dr. Dahlman's research and teaching explore how rapid advances in science, technology and information are affecting the growth prospects of nations and influencing trade, investment, innovation, education and economic relations in an increasingly globalizing world. At the World Bank Dr. Dahlman served as Senior Advisor. Prior to that he served as Staff Director of the 1998-1999 World Development Report, Knowledge for Development, was the Bank's Resident Representative in Mexico, and led divisions in the Bank's Private Sector Development, and Industry and Energy Departments. Dr. Dahlman's recent books include: Finland and the Knowledge Economy: Accomplishments and Lessons Learned (2006), India and the Knowledge Economy: Leveraging Strengths and Opportunities (2005), China and the Knowledge

Economy: Seizing the 21st Century (2001), Korea and the Knowledge-Based Economy: Making the Transition (2000). He has just finished a book on the challenge of the knowledge economy for education and training in China which is being reviewed for publication. He is currently working on a book comparing the economic development strategy of China and India. Dr. Dahlman earned a B.A. magna cum laude in international relations from Princeton University and a Ph.D. in economics from Yale University. He has also taught at Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs.

Email: cjd42@georgetown.edu

Moderators

Mindy L. Kotler is founder and director of the Asia Policy Point (APP), formerly the Japan Information Access Project, a membership nonprofit research center in Washington, DC studying the US policy relationship with Japan and Northeast Asia. Its members include leading American scholars, policy officials, analysts, and journalists who follow the region. APP has over 15 years of experience introducing new research, analysis, and information to the American Asia policy community. Ms. Kotler received her Master of Arts degree in International Relations from Yale University and her Bachelor of Arts degree in Government and History with High Honors in Chinese History from Smith College.

Email: mkotler@jiaponline.org

For More Information

Asia Policy Point
2000 P Street, NW, Suite 620
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 822-6040, fax (202) 822-6044
access@jiaponline.org