WILL JAPAN IMplode?

A discussion of Japan's economy and investment climate

With

Donald Westmore

Executive Director, American Chamber of Commerce in Japan (ACCJ)

And

Abby Pratt

External Affairs Manager, American Chamber of Commerce in Japan (ACCJ)

Donald Westmore has been Executive Director of the ACCJ since July 1998. With 3,300 members and a staff of 30, the ACCJ is one of the largest and most influential Chambers outside of the United States. In addition to publishing the biennial United States-Japan Business White Paper, issues numerous position papers on how to improve the business environment in Japan, offers nearly 400 programs on topical subjects and provides extensive networking opportunities for its members and their guests. Before joining the ACCJ Mr. Westmore spent three decades in the U.S. Foreign Service, the US Senate, USTR and the telecommunications industry. Mr. Westmore retired from the Foreign Service in 1994 to join AT&T as Regional Director for Public Affairs in Southeast Asia, and subsequently became concurrently Managing Director for AT&T in Indonesia.
